

cancer unwrappedSM

MIDDLE SCHOOL WRITING CONTEST

Has cancer left you speechless? When cancer enters our lives it can be easier to write down our feelings than to say the words out loud. The Cancer Unwrapped Middle School Contest invites you to share those feelings in a one-page letter for the opportunity to win a $250 cash prize.

Who you write your letter to, and what you write about is up to you. You could write to a loved one about how their cancer diagnosis made you feel. There might be something you wish you had told a loved one who has passed away. Or maybe you have things to say to yourself – past, present or future. You could even write to cancer itself. Winning letters will be well-written and emotionally honest.

Contest winners will receive a $250 cash prize and their letter will be featured on the Cancer Pathways website. In addition, the winners' classrooms will receive a $50 cash prize.

Contest Details

- Open to students in grades 6-8 in King, Kitsap, Pierce, Snohomish and Thurston counties
- Letters must be no more than 750 words in length
- Letters must be submitted at cancerpathways.org by March 5, 2017

Visit cancerpathways.org for more information, or contact Liz Lange with questions at 206-709-1400 or liz@cancerpathways.org.